2015 ANNUAL REPORT

SHEDDING NEW LIGHT ON SLAVERY PAGE 10

CONCENSION OF

RESCUE THOUSANDS. PROTECT MILLIONS. PROVE THAT JUSTIC FOR THE POOR IS POSSIBLE.

Murugan and Selvi were once enslaved in a treecutting facility, until IJM and local authorities rescued them. Today, they are thriving in our aftercare program and running their own charcoal business.

REFLECTING ON 2015

Dear friends,

As I look back at 2015—a year of so many incredible milestones for IJM—I keep returning to four young women I met in the Dominican Republic just a few months ago.

These girls were recently rescued from unspeakable abuse at the hands of local pimps and traffickers. But, despite their experience, they are not broken or bitter. They are healing, encouraging one another, and eagerly learning to dream again. With hard work and hope, these brave survivors are already overcoming the darkness.

Their bold hope reminds me so much of the larger story we experienced at IJM this year.

As we've taken on the urgent and unspeakable injustices of the world—work others often call impossible—we've actually seen significant change happening. And just like these young women, our progress inspires new dreams of what may be possible in the next era.

It once seemed impossible to rescue even one child from brutal violence; now we see thousands freed each year.

Broken justice systems in places like Cambodia once seemed like they would never be fixed; now our teams witness miraculous transformation year over year. We're excited for how this progress will inform our work and inspire other countries just beginning the fight.

Your support and God's grace have made these impossible dreams possible. We have so much to celebrate in 2015, and so much to anticipate for the years ahead. Thank you for standing with us to protect the poor from violence this year.

Gratefully,

GARY A. HAUGEN IJM CEO

WHO WE ARE

WE ARE INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE MISSION.

TODAY, OUR TEAM IS HELPING TO PROTECT MORE THAN 21 MILLION PEOPLE FROM VIOLENCE WORLDWIDE.

We have spent nearly 20 years on the front lines fighting some of the worst forms of violence. We work in communities in Africa, Latin America, South Asia and Southeast Asia. Through our unique Justice System Transformation model, we help victims of violence secure justice and partner with key authorities to fix broken justice systems in the countries where we work.

RESCUE

We collaborate with local police to rescue victims from ongoing violence and bring them to safety.

RESTORE

We join with social workers to restore survivors to safety through counselling, education and skills training.

RESTRAIN

We partner with police to restrain criminals, traffickers and slave owners from hurting others.

REPAIR

We identify gaps in the systems that protect the poor, and then work with police and courts to address these challenges.

OUR 2015 IMPACT

A MESSAGE FROM ED WILSON, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, IJM CANADA

Dear friend,

2015 has been a year of many victories. Though there have been challenges, we've experienced big wins and incredible growth. The hurdles we have overcome give us great hope for the future. We have been working tirelessly to protect the poor from violence and it is with great joy that we share with you all we have accomplished over the past year.

There were many great moments for IJM Canada this year, but there are a few in particular I would like to highlight. In March, we made enormous gains in visibility when our global CEO Gary Haugen took the TED stage in Vancouver to discuss why ending violence against the poor is the catalyst to ending poverty. I'm also delighted to share that 2015 was a strong year for us financially, ending with a 49% increase in revenue over 2014. IJM Canada grew not only in financial resources, but in human resources as we welcomed three new staff members to our team.

We are so grateful for the generous gifts of time, hard work, and finances from our supporters, staff, and volunteers. Without their support, none of these incredible results would have been possible.

With great excitement and anticipation, we look forward to everything 2016 has in store.

I invite you to view the details of our 2015 accomplishments outlined in this annual report. I also ask that you continue to stand in solidarity with us as we continue to move forward in the work of transforming justice systems in developing nations around the world.

Until all are free, we will persevere in our mission to rescue thousands, protect millions, and prove that justice for the poor is possible.

Gratefully.

ED WILSON Executive Director, IJM Canada

FIRST RESCUE IN GHANA FREES 10 BOYS FROM BRUTAL SLAVERY

Backed by faithful IJM supporters, our newest field office in Ghana set out on their first-ever rescue operation in March 2015, bringing 10 young boys to freedom. These boys were among thousands enslaved in the dangerous fishing industry on Lake Volta. They faced daily beatings as they worked, and few had ever been to school or eaten a nutritious meal.

Our team worked closely with anti-trafficking police and social workers to arrest the slave owners and bring these 10 children to a safe aftercare home where they began healing. The boys arrived malnourished, exhausted and barely clothed—but now they are receiving good food, rest, play and education. Today we're locating their families and supporting their parents with counselling and education, so we can be confident the boys won't be trafficked again.

LATIN AMERICA

"SUPER DAY OF JOY" MARKS IJM'S 10 YEARS IN GUATEMALA

In October of 2015, we celebrated a decade of groundbreaking work protecting children from sexual violence in Guatemala.

Our team frequently holds "Day of Joy" events for children who bravely choose to testify in court. This year's special "Super Day of Joy" reunited boys and girls we've helped throughout all 10 years.

Their families enjoyed games, movies and a comedy show—as well as encouragement that Guatemala is safer because of their courage.

"In every child we see God's love made real. It is incredible to see girls and boys smiling, to see them overcome such deep suffering." IJM INVESTIGATOR V SOUTH ASIA

INDIAN OFFICIALS FREE 333 IN GAME-CHANGING RESCUE

In 2015, police near Chennai initiated a massive rescue with IJM's help and brought 333 children, women and men to freedom—our second-largest operation ever.

Families in this brick factory lived in tiny, thatched-roof huts and were each forced to make 2,000 bricks a week. They ate barely enough rice to survive. After the rescue, the IJM-trained officials provided medical care and meals, and then helped each family return to their home village. We will continue supporting them in a two-year aftercare program.

"When we started working here a decade ago, officials either hadn't heard of bonded labour or denied that it existed in their state. This rescue operation is a game-changer."

SAJU MATHEW IJM Vice President of Operations for South Asia

SHEDDING NEW LIGHT ON SLAVERY

This year, IJM teams published first-of-their-kind studies of bonded labour slavery in India and of sex trafficking in the Dominican Republic, which will provide crucial insight for the fight ahead. Capturing a hidden crime like slavery presents a serious challenge, but cutting-edge methodologies helped us gain a deeper understanding of the scale and nature of these crimes. Strong data like this will better position us to help authorities end slavery for good.

LANDMARK SENTENCE PROTECTS UGANDAN GRANDMOTHER

At 70 years old, Juliana was no match for the violent young man trying to steal her home and small grove of banana trees. She relied on her land to support her ten grandchildren, but lived in constant terror after this man attacked her with a machete to overtake it.

"I used to cry all the time. Now I don't fear... I can finally sleep peacefully again!" JULIANA IJM Client

Our Uganda team relentlessly defended Juliana and worked with police to arrest her attacker and put him on trial.

In April, a judge convicted this man to six years in prison—a rare judgment and the strongest sentence ever in our land grabbing cases. Today, Juliana and her grandchildren are safe again and rebuilding their lives in peace. 🏂 SOUTHEAST ASIA

RESCUING CHILDREN FROM DISTURBING ONLINE ABUSE

As crimes against impoverished children evolve, so does the expertise of IJM teams working to defend them. In August, we conducted back-to-back operations to rescue six young children in the Philippines from cybersex trafficking— a critical moment in our ongoing casework project against this abuse. These children had been exploited in thousands of abusive photos and videos broadcast online to pedophiles in 19 countries.

We worked closely with local authorities to arrest four suspects and rescue the children (many under 7 years old).

The children received immediate crisis care, and we will continue to guide them on the long journey of recovery.

"IJM is ready and able to support international law enforcement to stop the abuse and hold [abusers] accountable."

MEET CINDI'S HERD OF HELPERS

WATCH Cindi's inspiring story at IJM.ca/cows

Seven years ago, Cindi Wolk sat heartbroken in her kitchen, shocked by IJM's stories of young girls sold into brothels around the world. "I wanted to go over there," she says. "I wanted to be the one kicking down the door and grabbing the girls. But I know that's not the part I can play."

Instead, Cindi set her sights on 80 acres of unused farmland and her own unique way to help. With no experience, she created a thriving cow farm where she's raised dozens of cattle (and more than $11,000) to help rescue children. We're amazed by Cindi's heart for justice, and thankful for her inspiring message: "It isn't about how much you can do. It's about – 'Will you do anything?'"

"BREAK THE CHAINS" RIDE GOES THE EXTRA MILE

Biking 3,000 miles cross-country is already impressive, but cyclists George Cook and Mike Rutter made their journey even more inspiring. This summer, they endured blistering heat and rainstorms to spread awareness about trafficking and raise nearly $40,000 for IJM. "We put a picture on our bicycles of someone rescued from a brothel," says Cook, a director with Graystone Consulting. "Whenever we felt like giving up, we looked into their faces." Thanks to their relentless commitment, thousands of children will be rescued and protected from abuse.

SUPPORTER STORIES

GARY HAUGEN DELIVERS INSPIRING TED TALK

IJM CEO Gary Haugen took the prestigious 2015 TED stage to illuminate a hidden plague of violence devastating the poor—and to inspire great minds to take action on their behalf. In a series of powerful stories, he explained how violence is as much a part of everyday life for the poor as hunger, disease or homelessness.

HUNDREDS VISIT CONGRESS TO RALLY IN THE FIGHT AGAINST SLAVERY

We are so encouraged by IJM advocates speaking up for children and families enslaved around the world. More than 200 of these friends joined us in September 2015 to rally congressional support for the End Modern Slavery Initiative Act, introduced by Senator Bob Corker (TN).

Michigan-native Kevin Daum has joined us every year since 2009, because he knows how important advocacy can be.

"We are speaking a better world into existence," he says.

"Your voice makes a difference."

This impact in the field depends on a robust justice movement worldwide. Through support from our donors, we will:

ENGAGE Engage leaders around the world across business, international development and government.

ESTABLISH Establish 22-25 IJM field offices around the world.

MOBILIZE Mobilize 5,000 churches globally to seek justice in their communities and internationally.

EQUIP Equip the next generation of strong leaders in the fight for justice.

ENHANCE Enhance IJM's organizational sustainability so we are well-positioned to achieve our goals.

Generous donors sent IJM to rescue Charito* from sex trafficking in 2007. In 2015, eight years later, she sent us a letter of thanks and we couldn't wait to share it with you.

Dear IJM Family,

It was November 2007 when you came and saved me from the people who took advantage of my vulnerability. What I had at that time was only my shattered dreams, wounded self, and very low self-esteem. I was so sensitive, packed with a heart full of hatred and revenge. I had a desire to change my life, but I was so afraid.

Chasing my dreams was not easy. Some people did not support me, and some laughed and said I can't achieve my dreams. Through the help of my IJM social worker and staff in the shelter, these criticisms made me even stronger. I was able to finish my secondary education. Luckily, I got the IJM scholarship for my college. I've learned to prioritize my goals and dreams, and I am now starting a new chapter of my life.

Last August 3, 2015, I passed the Social Work board examination. Thank you so much: I am now a licensed Social Worker. I am so happy helping girls who have experienced traumas and hardships like me. I can return the help that IJM gave me.

To the IJM social workers and staff: thank you for making me realize that I'm worth everything in this world. Thank you for never giving up on me. You helped me climb high when the whole world said I can't do it.

Without each of you, I'd be nowhere near the person I am today—and the person I'm still working on becoming. There aren't enough words to express my appreciation, but I think this is a good start. I owe you one.

Thank you,

charito

TRANSFORMATION IN CAMBODIA

Abusers once trumpeted Cambodia as the place to purchase young children for sex with no fear of the law. Very young girls were sold in the open, and the local justice system was simply too broken to respond.

Over the last 15 years, we've partnered with officials like General Pol Phie They (pictured) and other anti-trafficking leaders to strengthen the justice system and end the abuse. Together, we've witnessed remarkable change: Our 2015 study saw the prevalence of children in the sex industry in three major cities drop from an estimated 15-30% to just 2.2%. This fierce effort proves to the world that justice for the poor is possible.

"We have a heart to protect the country by ensuring rights and freedom for all citizens, and by ensuring citizens are free from trafficking, infliction and suppression... Perpetrators may keep coming up with more trickery, but what we have is our will and our responsibility to fight against them."
